
All things are possible...Alex's testimony

Dear John,

God is constantly doing miracles, we just don't always pause to notice and recount His goodness. It builds our faith to thank God for His compassion and care. So here are several praises...

- The Teleo Bible school started this week at the Stateline Church, near Walla Walla, WA! That is truly a gift from God.
- Students eager for a growing relationship with Jesus.
- Staff from out of the U.S. got their visa's ahead of schedule!
- Housing has been found.
- A car was loaned for staff use during the school term.
- Several students need scholarships and are eager for a new relationship with Jesus. We are choosing to trust God with all the funding.
- God keeps providing our needs one step at a time. Thank you for following God's promptings to support students in this positive journey.
- In spite of trials in our personal lives, God keeps helping us move forward with His leading and help.
- Testimonies of changed lives!

Praising God for His Victory!!!

School Started!

Yesterday was the first day of classes. Eight students are registered at the moment. I say "at the moment" because God may bring a few more. What a joy to be starting school after much prayer, planning, and hustling. We are excited for the group of students attending the Bible school. I'm looking forward to sharing more of their stories with you.

This week is focused on learning about "Jesus' Last Love Letter" in the morning and then sharing the concepts with community in the evening. It's an interactive, practical revival for children youth, and adults, looking closely at Revelation 3:14-22. Last night, the room was filled with small groups happily sharing and learning together.

God is faithful and true,

Teleo Team

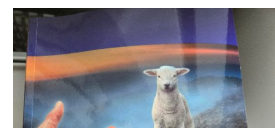

Still Want to Come?

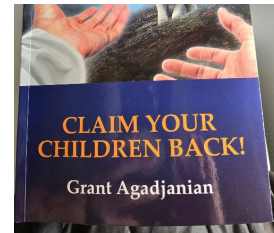

You can apply to come for specific weeks of the in-person classes at the Teleo Bible School. Take a look at the schedule of classes and see if there is something God wants you to attend.

Don't wait if God is truly wanting you to come. Big faith is quick obedience.

We are hoping to record the classes so you can even watch them online. NOW is the time to be seeking the Lord, so we want to make this possible for as many as we can.

Yes, I believe in what God is doing and want to be an adopt-a-student partner.

Praying for a Loved One?

We often get emails of parents or friends with broken, concerned hearts for the well-being and salvation of a dear person. The person doesn't appear to want God in his life. Or, she doesn't want to hear what you say.

Thoughts can bombard our mind, like...

What can I do to help?

How can Jesus reach my child?

I feel like God isn't helping.

I messed up, now what?

I'm a failure as a parent.

Why won't this person be all in for Jesus?

What can I do?

Here's some practical tips...

1. Persistently claim God's promises and trust the person to God's care.
2. Don't react negatively.
3. Don't reject others because of their choices. Keep showing you care and connect, even when you don't feel like it and feel hurt. Yes, it's ok to get a break too.
4. Be interested in their lives to be friendly, not to point out any wrong. Affirm where you can without compromising God's principles.
5. Don't attempt to keep controlling the person, especially if they are adults. Don't tell him/her what to do. He/she often knows what is right.
6. Focus on improving your own walk with Jesus, attitude, and health and then you can show up as a happy, healthy Christian. That is certainly more appealing as a representative of Jesus.
7. Forgive!

I came across this recently and want to share it with you. Click here to see a new resource to encourage you in praying for your loved one.

God is faithful and true and DOES keep His promises in His time and ways. We CAN choose to trust God with our loved-one and do our part with His strength and wisdom.
